Lost to the Sea: Maine’s Ancient Cultural and Environmental History

Alice R. Kelley¹,², Joseph T. Kelley¹,², Daniel F. Belknap¹,², Arthur Spiess³

¹School of Earth and Climate Sciences & Climate Change Institute, University of Maine, Orono, ME, ²Climate Change Institute, University of Maine, Orono, ME, ³Maine Historic Preservation Commission, Augusta, ME.
Small to Large
Composed largely of clam and oyster shells, but....
Environmental Archive of the last 5,000 years
Extinct Sea Mink

- Kendra Bird

The image shows an illustration of a sea mink and a photo of researchers excavating mink skeletal remains. The site is likely a location where the sea mink was found, contributing to the understanding of its habitat and behavior.
Lost to the Sea: Maine’s Ancient Cultural Heritage Field Conference on Maine Shell Middens